WELLNESS CORNER WITH MRS. KLASSEN

Celebrate Christmas by slowing down

We can slow down by...

Saying no. It seems we can spend our time just rushing from one activity to the next. We feel guilty for saying no to any of the many things that come with the season. But it is OK to say no!

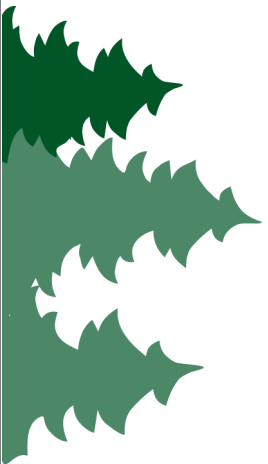

Because the reality is, when we say yes to one thing we are always saying no to something else. That something else might be family time, school time, or down time—but we are making choices. Let's make those choice intentionally by thinking through what we truly want to say yes (and no) to.

Being fully present. When we are busy, we can have a hard time not thinking about the next thing that needs to be done. And in this world that is so distracting, it is hard to focus on what is right in front of us. I don't think any of us want to look back and realize we missed out on all those little moments that mean so much more in the long run.

By simplifying. You can do this with decorations or even traditions. Choosing only to keep the things you love, that bring joy, or help you to focus on your reason for celebrating the season.

Holidays are meant to be more than chaos with glimpses of joy; they are meant to draw us closer one another. Choose deep connection over frantic flurry. Slow down, simplify, and savor as you celebrate the holidays with your loved ones.
